

Beat: Technology

UNESCO names laureates from Thailand and Perus for its 2017 Prize

For Girls and Women's Education

Paris, Washington DC, Zanzibar, 04.09.2017, 17:40 Time

USPA NEWS - UNESCO Director-General Irina Bokova has announced the names of the two laureates for the 2017 edition of the UNESCO Prize for Girls' and Women's Education. An International Jury recommended the two laureates for their innovative and sustainable projects in advancing girls' and women's education.-----

The Development and Education Programme for Daughters and Communities Center in the Greater Mekong Sub-Region (DEPDC/GMS) in Thailand is recognized for its project entitled "Education and Life Skills Training Programme to Help Stateless Children and Women Migrating from Shan State to Thailand"^[1].

UNESCO Director-General Irina Bokova has announced the names of the two laureates for the 2017 edition of the UNESCO Prize for Girls' and Women's Education. An International Jury recommended the two laureates for their innovative and sustainable projects in advancing girls' and women's education.-----

The Development and Education Programme for Daughters and Communities Center in the Greater Mekong Sub-Region (DEPDC/GMS) in Thailand is recognized for its project entitled "Education and Life Skills Training Programme to Help Stateless Children and Women Migrating from Shan State to Thailand"^[1]. The innovative project uses education and life skills training to protect migrant girls and women from the risks of human trafficking and sexual or labour exploitation. It also works on the rehabilitation of girls and women who have fallen prey to these abuses. It is recognized as a model that can be replicated in the country and elsewhere in the world.-----

The Mini Academy of Science and Technology "MaCTec Peru is commended for its "Mobile MaCTec Bus Labs/Mini Academy of Science and Technology"^[2] project to empower girls from rural areas through quality science education and reduce the gender gap in science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM). The project has been developed in partnership with state authorities, private donors and the academic community. It is scalable and can be replicated in other countries.

The two organizations will each receive an award of USD 50,000 at an official ceremony in Xiamen, People's Republic of China, on 5 September 2017.-----

The UNESCO Prize for Girls' and Women's Education rewards innovative, outstanding projects advancing girls' and women's education. It contributes to two Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs): "Ensure inclusive and equitable quality education and promote lifelong learning opportunities for all"^[3] (Goal 4) and "Achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls"^[4] (Goal 5). Established in 2015 by the UNESCO's Executive Board, the Prize is funded by the Government of the People's Republic of China and was awarded for the first time in 2016 to two outstanding projects from Indonesia and Zimbabwe.

Article online:

<https://www.uspa24.com/bericht-11884/unesco-names-laureates-from-thailand-and-perus-for-its-2017-prize.html>

Editorial office and responsibility:

V.i.S.d.P. & Sect. 6 MDSiV (German Interstate Media Services Agreement): Rahma Sophia Rachdi

Exemption from liability:

The publisher shall assume no liability for the accuracy or completeness of the published report and is merely providing space for the submission of and access to third-party content. Liability for the content of a report lies solely with the author of such report. Rahma Sophia Rachdi

Editorial program service of General News Agency:

United Press Association, Inc.

3651 Lindell Road, Suite D168

Las Vegas, NV 89103, USA

(702) 943.0321 Local

(702) 943.0233 Facsimile

info@unitedpressassociation.org

info@gna24.com

www.gna24.com